ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention proposes a method for generating a subscriber identifier, comprising the steps of generating an identifier base string based on encrypting a subscriber identifying value, generating an integrity check value based on the identifier base string, and generating a subscriber identifier based on a concatenation of the identifier base string and the integrity check value. The invention also proposes a corresponding network control node.